Introduction

New Jersey hospitals are a vital public resource. They serve 18 million patients annually, providing healthcare services to all, regardless of their ability to pay. But the contributions of New Jersey’s hospitals extend far beyond their healthcare services. Hospitals also are economic strongholds; they are dependable sources of jobs, income taxes and spending that help stabilize their communities through good times and bad.

New Jersey’s acute care hospitals provide substantial contributions to the state’s economy. In 2013, New Jersey hospitals delivered:

- $20.9 billion in total expenditures
- $2.8 billion in purchased services
- 117,000 full-time equivalent jobs and total employment of 144,000 full- and part-time positions
- $8.3 billion in total employee salaries
- Close to $460 million in state income taxes paid by hospital employees
- $1.3 billion in charity care services to New Jersey’s working poor and other uninsured residents.

Healthcare is the only industry that has added jobs in the state every year from 1990 through 2013. According to the New Jersey Department of Labor, the outlook for healthcare employment in the Garden State is bright. From 2010 through 2020, it is projected that nearly 62,000 jobs will be added, accounting for more than 19 percent of net job growth in New Jersey.

A November 2014 report from the state’s Department of Labor reinforces the positive outlook for healthcare jobs at the county level. Over a 10-year period ending in 2022, the Department projects that healthcare will be the top ranked sector for employment growth in 16 of New Jersey’s 21 counties, and ranked second in the remaining five counties.

Hospital contributions ripple across New Jersey, providing economic stability to the state, its counties and to individual communities. In many towns, the local hospital is the largest employer, providing untold benefits in jobs and health insurance coverage, local spending and community health services.

The pages that follow detail the many economic contributions of New Jersey’s hospitals. The information is presented statewide and also for New Jersey’s 21 counties. In addition, hospital-specific reports show the important contributions of hospitals to their local communities. Together, this data paints a compelling picture of the compassionate care and economic stability delivered by New Jersey’s hospital community.
