

Sarah Bianchi is a Senior Advisor to The Governance Project. Her career has straddled finance and public service. She served as Director of Economic and Domestic Policy for Vice President Joe Biden and as Deputy Assistant to President Barack Obama for economic policy, after which she was a managing director of the financial markets unit of Black Rock, Inc and Head of Global Policy for Airbnb. Prior to working in the White House, Sarah was as an Investment Adviser at Eton Park Capital Management, L.P. She also served as National Policy Director for John Kerry and Senior Health Advisor to Al Gore during their presidential campaigns. She graduated, Magna Cum Laude, from Harvard University.